Army Installation Management Chiefs Call For Efficiencies

Katherine Hammack opened the Association of the U.S. Army's "Hot Topics" forum on installation management, March 10, by telling the packed house about what she had recently testified before the House Appropriations Committee. "We know that degraded readiness makes it difficult for us to provide for the common defense," said Hammack, assistant secretary of the Army (installations, energy and environment). "The Budget Control Act creates risk for sending insufficiently trained and under-equipped Soldiers into harm's way - and that is not a risk this nation should accept. "I would be negligent if I didn't talk about Army Installation Management and the need for another round of BRAC [Base Closure and Realignment Commission] - we need another round of base realignment and closure in 2017 and although our need for a BRAC is more exposed by the downsizing of the Army's force structure, it is really a way to manage infrastructure that is left over from World War II when we were an Army of 8 million," she said. "As we shrink to an Army of 490,000 or smaller, we see a growth in excess infrastructure." Hammack said that with an Army of 490,000 active-duty Soldiers, excess infrastructure lies at 18 percent. Excess infrastructure will get larger as the Army's population gets smaller - 475,000 Soldiers by the end of 2016, down to 450,000 by the end of 2017. (More)

OPM Seeks To 'Untie the Knots' In Federal Hiring Process

The federal personnel chief unveiled plans Monday to improve the government's biggest jobs board and "untie the knots" in hiring and recruiting new employees, eliminating long-standing obstacles for job seekers and managers trying to find top talent. The wide-reaching "road map" also is designed to make the federal workforce more diverse and its employees more engaged with their jobs, said Office of Personnel Management Director Katherine Archuleta, who has spent the last year talking to job candidates in and out of government to identify where the process falls short. Army Close To Making Force Structure Decisions at U.S. Bases

It seems unlikely that Congress will go along with DoD's latest request to close stateside military bases, but in the case of the Army, many of the bases lawmakers are protecting would become a lot more sparsely-populated if the Budget Control Act stays in full force. Later this month, the Army will wrap up a listening tour it's been conducting at bases around the country as it prepares to draw up plans for how it would allocate its forces under full sequestration, which would push its already-planned drawdown from 570,000 to 450,000 soldiers to a yet-smaller force of 420,000. Bill Slashes Pay of Top-Earning Federal Employees

Federal employees making more than $100,000 a year would see their salaries slashed by thousands of dollars, under legislation introduced recently. The Promoting Accountability in Decisions (PAID) for Progress Act, introduced by Rep. Tom Rice, R-S.C., would, upon passage, cut all salaries for employees making more than $100,000 by 8.7 percent. The reduction would also apply to members of Congress and the president. (More)

Base Closure Proposal Meets Resistance in Senate

A Senate panel on Wednesday said it will not back the Defense Department on another round of military base closures, despite warnings that excess properties will squeeze budgets and could hurt readiness in the future. Members of a Senate Armed Services subcommittee were urged by defense officials to allow the closures but said an earlier round in 2005 did not save as much as promised and was a difficult experience for military communities across the country. New FOIA Training Targets 'Everyday Employee'

The Justice Department's Office of Information Policy is introducing a new suite of tools to train feds on Freedom of Information Act procedures. The new training is suitable for all federal employees, not just FOIA officials. The tools — to be released later this week — will include a brief video introduction to FOIA by OIP Director Melanie Ann Pustay; separate online training modules for FOIA-centric positions and general employees; and a quick-reference infographic targeted to new federal employees. Army to Deal with Budget Cuts by Sharing Services with Local Communities

The Pentagon has made it clear that even under the rosier of budget scenarios, funding for maintenance and infrastructure on military bases is relatively low on its list of priorities. So the Army wants to move aggressively to offload some of those functions to the local communities around its facilities wherever possible, an arrangement it thinks would be much more cost-efficient, officials said Tuesday. The Army has some help from Congress in this regard. Even if lawmakers won't let the service shutter excess infrastructure, they did endorse a new, streamlined process for public- public partnerships in this year's National Defense Authorization Act. The new authorities let DoD officials sidestep the strictures of the Federal Acquisition Regulations and sign up for sole-source arrangements with local governments outside the gates of their bases. Alert: Potential Scam

The Benefits and Entitlements Branch would like to alert all Federal employees of a potential scam by a benefits and retirement planning company, Government Employee Services. The scam intends to use misinformation as well as fear about the Affordable Care Act and its impact on the Federal Employees Health Benefit Program to influence Federal employees to buy their services. During low volume hours the far right lane will be closed with the exception of emergencies. The American Discovery Trail will remain open. Construction is expected to last approximately two months, barring major weather delays. The exact construction start date is currently unknown. Army Researching Uniforms That Automatically Decontaminate

One day, Soldiers may wear uniforms and chemical protective suits that decontaminate themselves and are cool enough to wear for extended periods. Researchers such as chemist David McGarvey, Ph.D, at the Army's Edgewood Chemical Biological Center, on Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland, are part of a team led by the Natick Soldier Systems Center that is developing just those technologies. The idea is that uniform items are pre-treated with a chemical that can render harmless things like nerve or blister agents. (More)

Safety Spotlight

ARMY SAFE
IS ARMY STRONG

Arrive Alive

I know we all take safety very seriously. However, we have had a substantial rise in fatal sedan accidents over the last 90 days. We, as senior leaders, must be more engaged, communicating at all leader levels how imperative safe driving is to preserve our force, across all components. To date this fiscal year, 68 percent of all private motor vehicle fatalities reported Army-wide involved Soldiers in the rank of E1 through E4 and 63 percent were between the ages of 18 and 24. The majority of all fatal PMV-4 accidents were single vehicle accidents, often caused by excessive speed, distracted or inattentive driving. Most occurred over the weekend period Friday through Sunday, with the majority of the accidents occurring between the hours of 0500 and 1700 and not during periods of limited visibility. As Leaders, we must consistently engage our Soldiers and remind them of the hazards inherent to driving, particularly in inclement weather. Emphasize the risks of inattentive driving and encourage safe arrivals without multi-tasking while en route. As our engaged Leaders mitigate driving risks for our Soldiers brought about by cold weather road hazards, we must also prepare for the arrival of spring, warmer weather, and all the high risk activities this season reintroduces. Let's get all our Leaders engaged and proactive in restoring "Arrive Alive" as our recurrent travel outcome. We're counting on every Soldier to strengthen our great team. Army Safe is Army Strong! - Gen. Daniel Allyn, Army Vice Chief of Staff

Women's History Month: Weaving the Stories of Women's Lives

The Army dedicates each March to highlighting individual and collective stories of female Soldiers. Their stories are inextricably woven into the essential fabric of the nation's history and the history of the U.S. Army. This year, the Army acknowledges the accomplishments and contributions of pioneering women from the past and recognizes their impact on the force of today. The theme for this year's observance is: Weaving the Stories of Women's Lives. In just over two years, the Army has opened to women six previously closed military occupational specialties and over 55,000 positions across all Army components. For the first time in history, the Army recently allowed the female Soldiers to attend the Army's Ranger Course to possibly earn the Ranger tab. This is one of the many steps the Army is taking to integrate women into combat roles. Army leadership encourages the entire Army Family to publicly honor women's contributions by highlighting women and their military and civil service, at all levels, by telling their story in command information products. Our instructor has returned and we're happy to once again be able to offer New Beginnings as part of our group fitness class schedule. This fitness program provides students with great physical and mental benefits. Offered in the middle of the day allows an opportunity to take that much needed break away from work. This class is designed for those new to exercise and is presented in a non-competitive environment. The instructor will take things slow, with the workouts beginning with a short walk/cardio segment, followed by simple strength exercises, and wrapping up with relaxing stretching movements. Exercise variations will be offered so both beginners, as well as slightly more advanced students, will reap great benefits and be challenged at their own fitness levels. Let today be the day you take that first step. Class is held Tuesdays and Thursdays 12-12:45 p.m. More info on all classes can be found here.

St. Patrick's Day Drinking and Driving Prevention

Don't Depend on Dumb Luck—Designate a Sober Driver Before the Party Begins

For many Americans, St. Patrick's Day has become a popular night out to celebrate with friends and family. Unfortunately, due to the large number of drunk drivers, the night out has also become very dangerous. On St. Patrick's Day 2010, 37 percent of the drivers and motorcyclists involved in fatal crashes had a Blood Alcohol Content (BAC) of .08 or above, according to statistics by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. Additional NHTSA statistics show that in 2010, there were 103 crash fatalities on St. Patrick's Day. Out of that number, 39 people were killed in traffic crashes that involved at least one driver or motorcyclist with a blood alcohol concentration BAC of .08 or higher. The RIA Army Substance Abuse Program recommends the following easy steps, for a safe St. Patrick's Day. • Plan a safe way home before the festivities begin; • Before drinking, please designate a sober driver and leave your car keys at home; • If you're impaired, use a taxi, call a sober friend or family member, or use public transportation so you are sure to get home safely; • If you happen to see a drunk driver on the road, don't hesitate to contact your local law enforcement. • And remember, if you know someone who is about to drive or ride while impaired, take their keys and help them make other arrangements to get to where they are going safely.

Make the Decision to Quit Tobacco for National Kick Butts Day

Make the commitment to quit tobacco on Wednesday, March 18, 2015 for Kick Butts Day. Kick Butts Day is a national day of activism organized by the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids. This Kick Butts Day, TRICARE beneficiaries can pledge to quit smoking by joining others in the effort to raise awareness about the serious effects of using tobacco. In the United States, tobacco use is the leading preventable cause of death, disease, and disability. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, around 443,000 people die each year from smoking or exposure to secondhand smoke, and another 8.6 million suffer from a serious illness caused by smoking. In fact, two new CDC reports indicate that, despite the dangers of tobacco use, about 46.6 million adults in the U.S. still smoke, and 88 million non-smokers are exposed to secondhand smoke. Nutrition Remains Important For Brain Health

In recognition of National Nutritional Awareness Month and Brain Injury Awareness Month, the Fort Lee Army Wellness Center, or AWC, is offering nutritional information for that grey matter between everyone's ears. The human brain is the most complex structure in the universe with countless neurons. The brain has the ability to hold more information than all the libraries in the world. However, people do not always feel as if their brains are up to speed, especially as they reach their senior years. A brain's declining performance is not only due to age. The staff at AWC understands community members need to know the importance of nutrition and health for keeping the most important "muscle" in their body healthy. (More)

Notes for Veterans

VA Could Prescribe Pot to Veterans under New Bill

VA doctors could refer veterans to state medical marijuana programs under a landmark reform bill floated in the Senate on Tuesday. The bill would end the federal prohibition against pot as a medical treatment, clearing away any ambiguity for patients in states that have approved its use. It mirrors a House bill filed last month and specifically allows physicians and health care providers at Department of Veterans Affairs facilities across the country to recommend it. Medical marijuana has been approved by 23 states and the District of Columbia for treatment of a variety of afflictions, including glaucoma, cancer and HIV. But the VA is a federal agency that follows federal law, under which pot is still illegal, and patients cannot get access through its facilities. (More)

VA Accelerates Deployment of Nationwide Opioid Therapy Tool

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is accelerating the deployment of a state-of-the-art tool to help protect Veteran patients using high doses of opioids or with medical risk factors that put them at an increased risk of complications from opioid medications. The tool, referred to as the Opioid Therapy Risk Report, is being made available now to all staff in the Veterans Health Administration (VHA). Over the past week, VA's Interim Under Secretary for Health, Dr. Carolyn Clancy, has reached out to over 2,000 primary care providers in VHA clinics throughout the country to promote the use of this novel tool. It includes information about the dosages of narcotics and other sedative medications, significant medical problems that could contribute to an adverse reaction and monitoring data to aid in the review and management of complex patients.
